San Costantino Albanese is a small community located inside the Pollino National Park. In the past we have been subject to some severe hydro-geologic disasters in our urban area. We have developed with time a better understanding of the risks presents on our territory. We have also tried to improve our level of preparedness, in particular with the collaboration of Associations of Volunteers. It is one of them, the "Gruppo Lucano", who has brought to our attention the UNISDR campaign "Make Cities resilient".

For a small community like ours it is a rare opportunity to be able to share experiences with cities worldwide and for this reason we highly price the UNISDR initiative. Therefore it is with great pleasure that we ask to participate to the Campaign as "Participant City" and we pledge to continuously improve the resilience to disaster of our community. We have also submitted this application for approval to the next Town Council.

Our Best Regards,

Giuseppe Cantisani
Mayor
